Glossary

Director's Order

A director's order is a tool that requires a business to come into compliance with the legislation.

A director's order can be issued to a supplier if the supplier:

- has breached the Fair Trading Act or Regulations
- uses any form, agreement, letter or other document that is misleading or contains a term that misrepresents fair trade regulations
- publishes an advertisement that's misleading or contains a term that breaks fair trade regulations.

A director's order can direct a business to:

- stop engaging in anything that's described in the order
- take any measures specified in the order to ensure that fair trade regulations are followed.

Undertaking

An undertaking is an agreement with a business that breached the Fair Trading Act or Regulations and then stopped the practice.

The purpose of an undertaking is to prevent future breaches under the Fair Trading Act and Regulations. To comply with an undertaking, a business may have to:

- stop engaging in a practice or change a practice described in the undertaking
- provide compensation to anyone who has suffered a loss
- publicize the undertaking or the action being taken
- pay the costs of investigating the business' activities and any costs associated with the undertaking.

Administrative Penalty

An administrative penalty is a monetary sanction assessed by the Director of Fair Trading.

An administrative penalty can be issued if the Director of Fair Trading finds that a business:

- has breached a provision of the Fair Trading Act or the regulations
- has failed to comply with a term or condition of a licence issued under the Fair Trading Act or the regulations.

The Director may, by notice in writing given to a business, require the business to pay to the Crown an administrative penalty in the amount set out in the notice.

How much is the administrative penalty?

In setting the amount of the administrative penalty, the Director may consider a number of factors, including:

- the seriousness of the contravention or failure to comply
- the degree of wilfulness or negligence
- the impact on any person affected by the contravention or failure to comply
- if there is a history of non-compliance by the business
- whether or not there were any mitigating factors relating to the contravention or failure to comply
- whether or not the offender has derived any economic benefit from the contravention or failure to comply.
