ENERGY

Energy is the engine of Alberta's economy. Albertans own the oil, natural gas and other mineral resources. The energy industry accounts for approximately one-third of all Alberta government revenue, ensuring the ongoing delivery of critical public programs, such as health, education and infrastructure. Energy also accounts for just over half of the value of the province's total exports and about one-quarter of the province's Gross Domestic Product. The energy sector employs – directly and indirectly – nearly one in every six workers in Alberta.

The Ministry of Energy consists of the Department of Energy, the Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) and the Alberta Utilities Commission (AUC).

The Department oversees a diverse range of portfolios that includes natural gas, conventional oil, oil sands, petrochemicals, pipelines, electricity, coal and minerals. The department works within the province's framework of sustainable development to maintain or enhance resource exploration and development opportunities by:

- Ensuring Alberta's energy and mineral resources remain competitive, and attractive to investment and development;
- Informing Albertans about energy and mineral resource development and related policies, and the significance of these resources to the Alberta economy; and
- Providing Alberta consumers with a choice of reliable and competitively priced energy.

The ERCB regulates the safe, responsible, and efficient development of Alberta's energy resources: oil, natural gas, oil sands, coal, and electrical energy; and the pipelines and transmission lines to move the resources to market. The AUC regulate rates and terms of service of investor-owned natural gas, electric, and water utility services, as well as the major intra-Alberta gas transmission system, to ensure that customers receive safe and reliable service at just and reasonable rates

HUMAN SERVICES

The Ministry of Human Services offers a number of services and programs for children and families in the province, including:

- Child Protection (ensuring children in Alberta are safe and protected from abuse or neglect);
- Adoption Services;
- Child Care Programs (licensing of day care centers, financial assistance to low income parents accessing day care);
- Prevention of Family Violence and Bullying (funding of women's shelters, information on family violence and bullying issues);
- Services for Children with Disabilities (assistance for parents raising a child who has a disability);
- Early Intervention Programs.

Rather than Government directly delivering these programs, there are 10 Child and Family Services Authorities in Alberta that offer them to Albertans. Each of these Authorities has a board with members from within the community. They design programs in ways that best meet the needs of their region. The Authorities must meet specific standards in the way they operate. This allows for flexibility across the province while also making sure standards are reached.

The Child and Family Services Authorities are responsible for their own purchasing decisions, although the purchase of information technology equipment is primarily done in conjunction with or by the Ministry of Human Services.
